BEN JOHNSON

NEVER A DISTILLER.

Or Directly Or Indirectly Interested In The Sale of Whisky His First Vote Was Cast For Local Option.

JOHNSTON MISREPRESENTED.

Bardonia, Ky., Dec. 17.—Judge I. T. Thurman, of Springfield, Ky., made a speech here Monday in favor of local option. He spoke to a crowded house. He said, in his speech, that he was just out of a heated election; that he was tired and worn out; that he was seeking a much needed rest, and would not have come to Bardonia at this time except to correct some misrepresentations which were being made relative to his position upon the local option question. In the course of his remarks he also said:

"But why should I bother about being misrepresented? Is that not the way in Kentucky now, especially when a man holds or is a prospective candidate for office? Is not your own most distinguished citizen's position on this very question almost misrepresented and purely for political purposes? Did not one of the Hart county papers, a bit ago, say that Ben Johnson owned and operated one of the largest distillery plants in Nelson county, when I and all of you know that he never, at any time, had any interest, directly or indirectly, in the manufacture or sale of whisky. You and I know, and every man willing to know the truth knows, that the records of your County Clerk's office, kept within a hundred feet of where I now stand, bear me testimony to the fact that the first vote he ever cast in his life was for local option in Bardonia. He has voted that way for nearly a quarter of a century. At the last election held in the county upon the question, which was three years ago, he then voted for local option; and I know, and everybody knows, that he will again vote for local option next Saturday. He is a plain man of few words and yet a man who is not afraid to express his convictions. In my recent canvass for re-election as Circuit Judge of the Eleventh Judicial district, when I was being fought by the whisky interests of that district as perhaps no man was ever fought before, Ben Johnson was the only man holding public office in Kentucky outside of my district who came to my assistance. In a speech made in the very camp of the enemy, with distilleries standing all about him, he boldly and plainly stated that upon the question of local option he stood exactly where he had always stood; that he had always voted for it and always intended to do so. He has never trimmed; he has never dodged. Though he beats no drums, beats no horns and never marches with a brass band, you need never doubt his position upon any public question. More than that, he is a 'dry' man of the right kind—he practices what he preaches. He is one of the few men of my acquaintance of whom it can be truthfully said that neither spirituous nor malt liquor ever passed his lips—a glorious example to the youth of this country. But I came to talk to you of other matters. You people of Nelson county know these things better than I do."

Killing at Irvington.

Nat Calbert, colored, was killed Saturday night by negro Albert Staples, who is in jail at Hardinsburg. His trial was held yesterday. The tragedy was the result of a misunderstanding between the two.

Receiving Tobacco.

Moorman & Howard, at Glendens, received during last week about 250,000 pounds of tobacco. The tobacco in that section is not grading as high as it did last year. It is admitted by all concerned that the crop is very inferior, consequently it is not bringing near the money it did last season and a number of farmers are disappointed. There is no complaint regarding the grading which seems to be satisfactory.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE

Cloverport People Should Learn

To Detect The Approach of ### Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are so unmistakable that they leave no ground for doubt. Sick kidneys excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or difficult by a sensation of scaling. The back aches constantly, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighed down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger of dropsy, Bright's Disease, or diabetes. Any one of these symptoms is warning enough to begin treating the kidneys at once. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's the Cloverport proof:

John H. Willis, judge of police court, Harts, Cloverport, Ky., says: "I have no hesitation in pronouncing Doan's Kidney Pills the best remedy I know for the purposes for which their use is intended. I take pleasure in recommending them to other persons who may be suffering from disordered kidneys. I will be pleased to answer any questions about Doan's Kidney Pills at any time."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Resolutions of Respect.

We, the committee, appointed by the Mayor of Laura Stith Chapter No. 75 O. E. S. offer the following resolutions in memory of Sister Mary Jordan, who on the morning of Dec. 10, 1909, was summoned by the death angel quietly, but not unexpectedly to eternal rest.

Resolved First: That in the death of Sister Jordan, the order has lost one of its most faithful and devoted members, one whom we all loved. Her presence and influence will be greatly missed.

The family have lost a kind and devoted wife and mother.

A husband feels the loss of her. Children are left to weep. For wife and mother is at rest. In our midst peaceful sleep.

The sleep of death.

Resolved Second: That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family in the unexpressed loss which they have sustained and we earnestly pray that the comforting grace of a compassionate father, may rest upon them.

Resolved Third: That a copy be sent to the family to each of the county papers for publication and a copy be spread on our minutes.

Committee: Miss Mary A. Payne, Miss Lou McCoy, T. Stith.

Fentress-Hall.

Miss Sylvia Fentress and Billy Hall of Grayson county, were married Monday in Hardinsburg by Rev. J. C. Cline at the Methodist parsonage. Billy is the lovely daughter of Mr. Owen Fentress, of Glendens.

Passing on Prescriptions.

Some people look on a doctor's prescription in the same light as a cook's recipe and pass it on to their friends for general use. They forget that the same symptoms may come from totally different causes and that to take a medicine prescribed for a friend is a very risky thing to do and may do a great deal of harm. Home Chat.

Kitchen Apron.

A kitchen apron made of gum tissue, bound with white tape, is one of the most serviceable kinds. When soiled it can easily be washed and dried. It is also a useful apron to wear when preparing children's meals. The gum material can be purchased in sheet widths, and the pieces left convenient for many other purposes.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our heartfelt gratitude to the good women that helped so willingly and kindly to nurse our loved one and the many friends that have been with us in this dark hour.

Henry Davis and daughter and her sister, Mrs. Cliff Davis.

THE RACE FOR RICHES.

Is Wealth That Cannot Be Enjoyed

The writer once inquired of a very successful man:

"When do you ever get a moment's rest for your own self—to be yourself and to think your own thoughts? Do you ever get a time like that?"

The very successful man hesitated for a moment and then replied:

"Why, yes, I get such a time while I am being shaved in the morning."

Is success really worth the price when it must be paid for at such a price? When you are anxious and country houses and great estates if you have no time to visit them and enjoy their beauty? Why should one acquire things without the most exquisite works of art if he cannot find more than a casual half hour in which to view them? What are wife and children if you are always thinking about the world, far too preoccupied to give them any serious thought or to resolve the pleasure which their company would give you?

And yet there is one sole satisfaction—if it be a satisfaction. Millions of your fellow countrymen and countrywomen who live beyond all doubt that they are really happy and will envy you—Munsey's Magazine.

Remanded To Jail.

Albert Staples, colored, charged with the murder of Nat Calbert, at Irvington, Christmas eve was yesterday held over to the grand jury by Judge Moorman in the sum of $1000. In default of bail the defendant was remanded to jail.

Too Near The Throat.

In the seventies of the last century the artist, Anton von Werner, was appointed to perpetuate the German imperial pretension. His first work was a sketch to submit to the old Emperor William. In this the various personages were grouped in the same order as during the ceremony at Versailles. William I. standing on a raised platform, with his right hand on his hip and his left on his right the crown prince, with the artist had represented with one foot on the upper level. CLOVERPORT, KY., WEDNESDAY, DEC. 29, 1909

The tobacco situation at Hardinsburg is serious to the farmers. They have sold their pooled tobacco but can't deliver it on account of not being able to secure a house. The farmers held a meeting there last Monday to see if they could secure a suitable house but failed. They sent a committee to see the Beards who have two houses, but they failed to make any arrangements. The Beards are buying themselves and refused to rent or lease their houses. It is thought they will secure a house at Kirk and one at McQuady. What the tobacco growers will have to do, is to build their own houses and be in shape to take care of their own product if they continue to pool their tobacco. The best they can do is to join the Burley Association and combine their interests. The Burley people have adopted the only feasible plan to fight the trust and fix the prices.

Beard Bros., Hardinsburg, are offering their entire stock of thoroughbred horses and colts at reduced prices to close out their stock business. This is a splendid opportunity for anyone who wants to go into the live stock business in this county. They have built up a splendid business in this line and here's a chance for the right man to step into a good paying business.

The pooled tobacco of Warrick and Spencer counties, Indiana, has been sold at a price averaging 8 1/2 cents. The pool contained 3,000,000 pounds.

A glad, glorious New Year to the subscribers and friends of the News. We hope each of you will have health and wealth in the days of 1910.

The new city council which meets for the first time next Monday night should take up the question of fire protection.

Mrs. Lanier's Farm School.

The farm school maintained by Mrs. Sidney Lanier, Jr., near Elizabethtown, Ky., is of interest. Twenty girls were graduated recently after a summer course in dairy and poultry work. Mrs. Lanier hopes to attract city girls especially, taking them away from the monotonous routine of office and store work, though still fitting them to earn their own living. "My school is a success," says Mrs. Lanier. "I have taught my girls to make hay, to grow vegetables and, above all, to make good butter. The best opening for them is in the dairy, and I am sure that dairy work is more congenial to the average young woman than pounding a typewriter or standing behind a counter all day. Certainly it gives better health and rosier cheeks. I have several stenographers with me, and they say they will not return to the old, wearing routine. We now are concentrating our work on the dairy school, and we are turning out experts in butter-making. Poultry raising is another occupation fitted for women, and I have several pupils busy at that. All the girls are contented and happy, and it will surprise me if one of them returns to the hard life of the city."

Saving His Wind.

A highland athletic gathering was in full swing, and considerable interest centered in the chances of a local competitor who had entered for several events and confidently expected to win at least one of them. His first attempt was in that hardest of races the quarter mile, and he was easily defeated.

"Don't, don't," exclaimed a supporter reprovingly, "why did ye no run faster?"

"Fife faster," replied Donald contentedly, "an' me reserving mae self for the bagpipe competition."

THE NEW MACADAM.

How Road Builders Have Improved on Scotchman's Idea.

IDEAL HIGHWAY NECESSITIES

Careful Grading, Good Drainage, Substantial Foundation and a Wearing Surface Necessary For the Up to Date Macadamized Road.

In a recent speech on the construction and maintenance of macadam roads Austin B. Fletcher, secretary of the Massachusetts highway commission, said:

Macadam's road is a thing of the past. In fact, the road of the kind built by the Scotchman John Loudon Macadam and named in his honor has been obsolete in this country for some time.

Macadam knew nothing of machine broken stone, and he did not dream that a broken stone roadway could be made as smooth as a billiard table by the use of steam road rollers.

In these days when we speak of a macadam road we mean a road with the following characteristics:

A road with easy gradients, usually not exceeding a five foot rise in 100 feet of length.

A road with drainage appliances no perfect that substantially no water reaches the broken stone from below.

A road with a foundation consisting of either the natural soil, if suitable, otherwise of artificially placed gravel or unbroken stone, so that the foundation with the superimposed broken stone will have sufficient strength to distribute over the underlying soil any load to which the road is likely to be subjected.

A road with a wearing surface of two or more layers of broken stone, small in size, those at the bottom usually not more than two and one-half inches in diameter and those at the top generally varying from one and one-quarter inches to one-half inch.

BEAUTIFUL STRETCH OF MACADAMIZED ROADWAY.

(From Good Roads Magazine, New York.)

In diameter, each course or layer carefully spread, uniform in depth and rolled thoroughly with a steam road roller before the next course is placed. By this process, the rolling being done on thin layers, the stones become thoroughly compacted and the void spaces or interstices between the stones are largely eliminated. The final process consists in spreading over the surface of the upper layer of broken stone a thin covering of the screenings which result from the machine breaking of the stones and which contain a considerable proportion of fine dust, then finishing or grading the screenings into such voids as remain between the broken stone and rolling the road with the steam roller.

So far as the treatment of macadam roads is concerned, the remedy seems to be in the application of protective coats or coverings of a bituminous nature.

Before any of the bituminous materials are applied it is essential that the road surface be evened up and patched where necessary, rolled and swept clean of all dust. The bituminous materials are then applied hot to the road surface by means of spraying machines or gravity distributors or by hand in quantities varying from one-quarter to three-quarters of a gallon to the square yard and immediately covered evenly with sand, fine gravel or broken stone screenings.

The annual maintenance will be merely the cost of renewing the covering, probably from 4 cents to 5 cents per square yard per annum. Its life expectancy is so long that it will take place on the broken stone, and in a sense that portion of the ordinary macadam road which takes the wear will then after be only a foundation for the bituminous wearing coat.

The protective coat referred to would probably be inadequate for traffic, and the introduction of bituminous binders into the voids between the broken stones would be necessary.

A good deal of work of this sort is being done now in an experimental way by mixing the bituminous material with the broken stone before it is placed on the roadway or by grinding the bituminous material into the spaces between and around the broken stone after it has been placed and partially rolled.

The cost of the ordinary macadam road is probably from 20 to 50 cents per square yard, and the roadway will require a protective covering at least as often as once in two years. It would be economical to rely upon the protective covering and to omit the bituminous material from the voids between the stone while the traffic remains as at present.

Smokeless

Until science discovered a way to construct the Automatic Smokeless Device, and make it completely dependable, all oil heaters had one common great fault—smoke.

With the advent of the Automatic Smokeless Device, and its practical application to the

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device)

the smoke problem was successfully solved.

The Perfection Oil Heater is the only heater equipped with this which insures a steady, full-glowing heat, with the wick turned up as high as it will go without a shred of smoke. Reverse the motion, turn the wick down—there's no odor. The smokeless device automatically locks and prevents the upward movement of the wick beyond the proper exposure. That is the secret. This splendid result gives leadership to the Perfection.

You may now have all the heat you want—when you want it—and where you want it—without the annoyance of smoke or odor. Brass foot holds 4 quarts of oil, which permits a glowing heat for 9 hours. Brass tick tube—jamper top—cool handle. Cleaned in a minute. The Perfection is beautifully finished in Nickel or Japan.

A HANDY CUPBOARD.
 An Up to Date Way of Making the Kitchen Attractive.
 It is quite usual now for people living in a small flat, with only one living room, to have their meals in the kitchen, especially in those cases where the foreign method is adopted of employing a servant, for certain hours only, who sleeps out.
 The illustrations show suggestions for making the kitchen stove and dresser as possible under the circumstances. It is very important also to keep all the apparatus used for household cleaning hidden out of sight. For this purpose is recommended a handsome cupboard made on skeleton principle which can easily be fitted into a recess. If one exists, at the side of the fireplace. You will then require two half inch boards cut to the right measurement. One of these acts as the top, and it is secured to wooden supports which have been pinned to the wall for security, and a curtain rod is fixed across the front. The second board has slots cut in it at intervals, as shown in the picture, where you can see into the manner of fitting between the shelf and its supports. Brackets and brushes rest securely in the slots, while beneath them there is plenty of space for dusters, cloths, oil cans, etc. A denim curtain drawn across the cupboard will conceal all these ugly but necessary ingredients from view.
 But in the event of there being no suitable recess an extra board for one

CHAPTER XXIII

ATLANTA, city and wet, had brought mourners in the country early to town, among them Mrs. Harris and her daughter, Miss Harris had requested Jimmy Smith's services before she descended from the mountains. There was a lot to do on their arrival. Would he mind attending to this and that for them, and would he meet them? Jimmy duly attended to this and that, met them in his old sedan way, saw them installed in their home, dined with them, as per Mrs. Harris' schedule—and, although the winter was well advanced, had never been there alone except to make a brief call at Christmas.

At each of these visits Emma had thrilled at sight of him, and at the sound of his voice. He was with her, that she had extended her hand to him, but neither by pressure of his hand nor by any sign of manner, expression or intonation, did he show more she became endeared to him. His dedication of remembrance to her secret was known to each other. He was the same quiet, kindly unchangeable Jimmy. By his presence his wife's prolonged absence underlined to Mrs. Harris and Beth finally attributed it to a reluctance to meet continually on an equal footing his employer, Captain Williams, who had taken Emma's place as extra member of the family and usurped all his prerogatives.

To Emma the captain was no longer an object of fear and dejection. She knew that his affection was purely paternal, and he knew that she understood him as an old friend or living ever had or did. She manifested her appreciation of his regard by a confidence which was to the old fellow a comfort and large delight. Not that his delight took a demonstrative form, that was not in his nature, and Emma would have been greatly astonished could she have known what a boon to him her frank friendliness was.

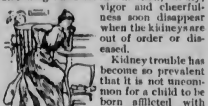

The fact was that the good deed to Emma had been the first striking effect of a softening process that had been going on very, very slowly, so slowly as not to be noticeable, for the extent, for several years, which began when he had been admitted to the family circle of his wife's father, and with which all unbecomingly, Emma had had a good deal to do. He had anchored himself to the family as his one comfort, his one joy and home life. But it had been a cautious anchoring, maintained with distrust and carrying with it no real peace in the shadow of his wife's other favors. A lighter who had nothing out of existence without light, ever on the alert for forestall an expected treachery, his hand had fallen to his hip pocket, so to speak, at the slightest movement that appeared to him to be unpropitious.

As time wore on, however, the distrust had vanished, and Mrs. Harris and her daughters had become a necessity to him. He was being elevated, he preferred Emma to the others, which is saying that she was the person he liked best of all, that his manner of showing it had been restrained and unobtrusive. In the first place she had helped him in his supposed injustice to her in kind, whereas, having read through the letter, he had despised him, and would not help him even to make her lot easier. When reconciled, dealing with his unwillingness to let her see the state of her mind, he had been unmercifully kind to her in his own way. His actions and idiosyncrasies received at last their true interpretation.

As for Williams, the proof that he had not been deceived in her fortified his faith and made him truly happy. He was getting used to her, he had won his hard fought, lifelong battle with the world and was as rich as he could be. The devil was disposed to turn monk. The yearning for affection, so demonstrative, but existent, which came with the approach of life's sunset and which was not to be found elsewhere was gratified there. He put on slippers, smoked his pipe, had his favorite chair, expressed his views in his authoritative way and liked to be consulted.

But he never ceased to be impressed with the ostentatious proclivities and aristocratic airs of Mrs. Harris and Beth, though he laughed indulgently at many of the mother's follies. To him the two women represented the beau monde and were superior to all that pertained thereto. He deemed it a privilege to place one of his automobiles at the family's exclusive command, and it was the most luxurious vehicle money could buy. That he did not give it outright was because he knew their circumstances would not enable them to maintain it.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discomfiting and lessening the vitality, vigor and cheerfulness. When such a person comes down from the mountains, there is no order or ease of mind.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine smells the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar bottles. You may have a sample bottle mailed free, if you simply fill out the coupon and send it to the publisher, J. C. Williams, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, 100 N. York St., New York, N. Y. Be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake. Swamp-Root is sold by J. C. Williams, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, 100 N. advice, so it didn't matter, as it won't go any further. Suppose Emma had married him? In his heart all right? Is he in the level? I'd bank on him, and that's more'n I'd say of any other man I know. Is he capable? Is he steady? Is he good looking? He ain't bad looking, and with that smile of his he has most good looks. I've seen him a mile or two, but when he ain't poetic and all that sort of thing, maybe maybe, but what of that? Also she says he ain't what you call educated. That may be so, but what he wants to be can bring an amount of red nose to hear that I'd upset most men's heads and give a bluff no chance. He'll go far if he keeps on, free all his slow ways, and let me tell you it ain't the man who starts off at top speed that always wins the race.

"What you say may be all true, but these qualities haven't made Jimmy rich so far, and I should if they ever will. A man can't have everything, but money, as I've often told my girls, makes up for a lot of shortcomings, and without it what? Here's Emma, married for seven years, separated from her husband, can't get a divorce unless it's of the Dakota sort, which I'd never consent to, hasn't got a cent in the world and couldn't collect a cent of alimony if she had the right to it because the beast's a pauper."

"No, and if he were as wealthy as the grand Turk I'd advise to marry before I'd touch any money or anything else belonging to him," commented Emma.

"Mrs. Harris," answered the captain, with deep feeling, "money, while it's a whole lot, ain't everything, as I've found, though it's taken me thirty years to do it. It's no fault of Emma's that she's poor, and I tell you that if she was to marry a man like Smith I'd settle $50,000 worth of Latin-American live stock on her for a wedding present. I would, by Sam'man's!"

"You would do that?" asked Mrs. Harris, overwhelmed with astonishment.

"This minute."

"Well!"

It was all she could find to say about the retort.

But if the family were amazed, Will was evidently alarmed at what he allowed his feelings to get the better of his discretion in this way, for he tapped into gloomy silence and very soon departed abruptly.

Louis the Magnificent.

As soon as he was dressed by his valet in a suit of black cloth, two little emeralds of gold cord were sewed to the cloth. Under the cord was a white waistcoat, which was almost entirely hidden by the ribbons and wide swathes of his orders. His sash brooches ended in a pair of high boots of satiny red velvet, which encased the knees and were made of supple tan leather, for the thickness of leather on legs that were often painful from frost would have created too much friction. He made a great point of these boots. He thought that they made him look like a general, ready at any moment to spring upon a horse, though this was a physical impossibility to him since he was much too fat and too infirm. He used powder with a view to making the white locks of age, and this gave him the complexion of an appearance of youth.

The Use of Wide Tires.

As to the desirability of the use of the wide tires there can be no question. The most casual observation will suffice to convince any one of the damage which a heavily laden wagon equipped with the ordinary sharp rounded, narrow tires will produce on any road. There is also another and perhaps even greater advantage to be gained by the use of wide tires, namely, the increased hauling capacity attained.

THE AMERICAN WOMAN.

Her Position Here and Its Influence in the Old World.

There is no doubt that the most interesting thing to the European who lands on the northern shores of the new world is the American woman; that happy, victorious heroine of modern foundations, who has discovered how to extract from the new condition of woman all the advantages with almost none of the inconveniences, that she has so skilfully learned to assume the masculinity in all that regards independence and liberty of action and remains feminine in grace, charm and alluring; that American beauty, that American genius, whose wonders are seen and felt in all the American and European reviews, whose writers declare her to be rugged almost untiringly in severe study, in masculine work, sport and similar occupations.

Europe, however, is right. The American woman is not only one of the most interesting phenomena of North America, but is also the phenomenon of the new world that most have the greatest and greatest effect on the old, shaking on their foundations the essential principles of our female instruction and training, and throwing the society of the old continent or continent, which rest to a greater extent than is realized on the antique functions of woman in the family and in society.—Gina Lombroso Ferrero in Woman's Magazine.
